

ISLAND 11. JULI – 18. JULI

Next stop is Viti. IT is a crater with a lake in the center. It was formed during the eruption in 1724, which lasted for many years afterwards.

Day 4, the 14th of July, we continued on the stage.

Some of the surrounding countryside.

Viti lies in the Krafla caldera, which is 10 km in diameter.

A bit further ahead we see at the right Hrossaborg, which is a crater. Link. To the left in the background we can see Herðubreið.

Herðubreið is a mountain of volcanic origin.

We stopped at a rest area in a barren landscape a little farther away.

Sand and pebble.

There were some plants here anyway.

Furthermore we stopped to take a picture of a mountain range in the east with a lot of snow on the peaks.

View to the west.

This is Jökuldalur. View down the valley.

Jökuldalur. The views up where we came from.

Down the valley we find this waterfall, Rjúkandi.

We stopped at this place to take pictures.

It is very green in this valley.

We get a glimpse of Jökulsá in the bottom of the valley.

Agricultural implements is needed in Iceland as well.

We stopped at the end of the valley to take a picture of Jökulsá.

When we got to Fellabær, just before Egilstadir, we saw this diner and we found out that we would have a cup of coffee here.

Here we come to the counter.

Farther inside there are tables to sit at and lots of books.

We sit in the "lounge" with the coffee.

It was a little early in the day yet, so we did not stop in Egilstadir, but ran across the mountains towards Seyðisfjörður. Up on the mountain, there is still ice on the water.

Heiðarvatn is located in the mountains between Seyðisfjörður and Egilstadir.

Looking down to Seyðisfjörður.

The church.

The harbor.

Here is the ferry that goes to the Faroe Islands and Denmark. It is Smyril Line that is operating this route.

Aldan. Hotel and restaurant is located right in the center.

We went a little round along the river which flows into the bay.

Bright colors on the houses.

This is a memorial stone for the Norwegian Otto Andreas Wathne, which accounted for herring fishing in Iceland.

Hótel Snæfell is run by Aldan.

Then we drove back to Egilstaðir over the mountain.

We should stay at Birta Guesthouse in Egilstaðir. This is the main building.

We stayed in the right apartment in the blue annex.

After we had installed ourselves in the hotel, we ate at this restaurant, Café Nielsen.

Good steak dinner with wine.

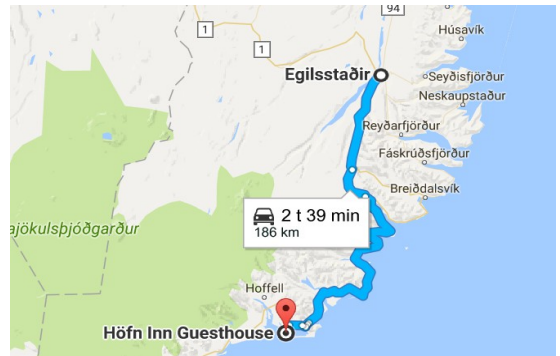

When we had eaten, we sat a little outside our hotel.

Garden outside.

This was the breakfast that was prepared for us.

The leg day 5, on July 15, looked like this. The road goes over the mountain. It was a dirt road and there was thick fog and heavy rain, so it was slow going over the mountains. It suited us that we had a good time that day.

A small detour to Breiðdalsvík. The ship is in the field.

From the center of the village.

A waterfall that we do not know the name of.

Not good visibility in the rain.

Another waterfall.

This is in Djúpivogur.

We noticed this house with figures on the ridge behind.
It is the house of Jón í Bergholti. Link.

It was one cruise ship at the quay in Djúpivogur.
It was belonging to Iceland Pro Cruises.

The rain was pouring down, so we did not go out of the car.

We took pictures of 34 eggs, which are made of stone.
They are made by Ríkarður Jónsson and placed her in Gleðivík.

This is a monument that stands at the harbor. Unveiled in 1999.

We believe the monument is in memory of drowned sailors and fishermen and that the sculptor is Johanna Þórðardóttir.

Hotel Framtid lies at the harbor.

The harbor in Djupivogur.

From Djupivogur we drove on to Höfn.
Landscape along the way.

We stayed at Höfn Inn Guesthouse.

After we had checked in, we drove down to the harbor to dine at Pakkhus Restaurant.

The restaurant is on the second floor.

We got a table by the window.

The view through the window.

We had Fish and Chips.

Here we had breakfast the next day. Breakfast is in a building some distance away from the main building.

From the breakfast room.

So we are ready to move on.
