

THAILAND, PATTAYA / JOMTIEN FROM AUTUMN 2010 UNTIL SPRING 2011

On a hill between Jomtien and Pattaya there is a view point, which is a very popular goal for a walk.

Here we have arrived where we can look down to Pattaya.

A view further inland.

Anne Berit on her way to the real view point.

Here is standing a big statue of admiral Krom Luang Jumborn Khet Udomsakdi, Prins of Jumborn - formally HRH Prince Abhakara Kiartiwongse, who, during the reign of king Chulalongkorn (RamaV), was best known for his effort in developing The Royal Thai Marine. He was born the 19th of December 1880.

Another view of Pattaya.

At the other end of the hill there is a small temple area.

At the entrance is sold small birds in cages. It is common to buy these and let them loose in front of the Buddha statues.

It is also possible to buy all kinds of Buddha souvenirs and of course incense sticks, which are used during the worship of Buddha.

The dogs are relaxing in the shadow and don't care much.

That do also the cats.

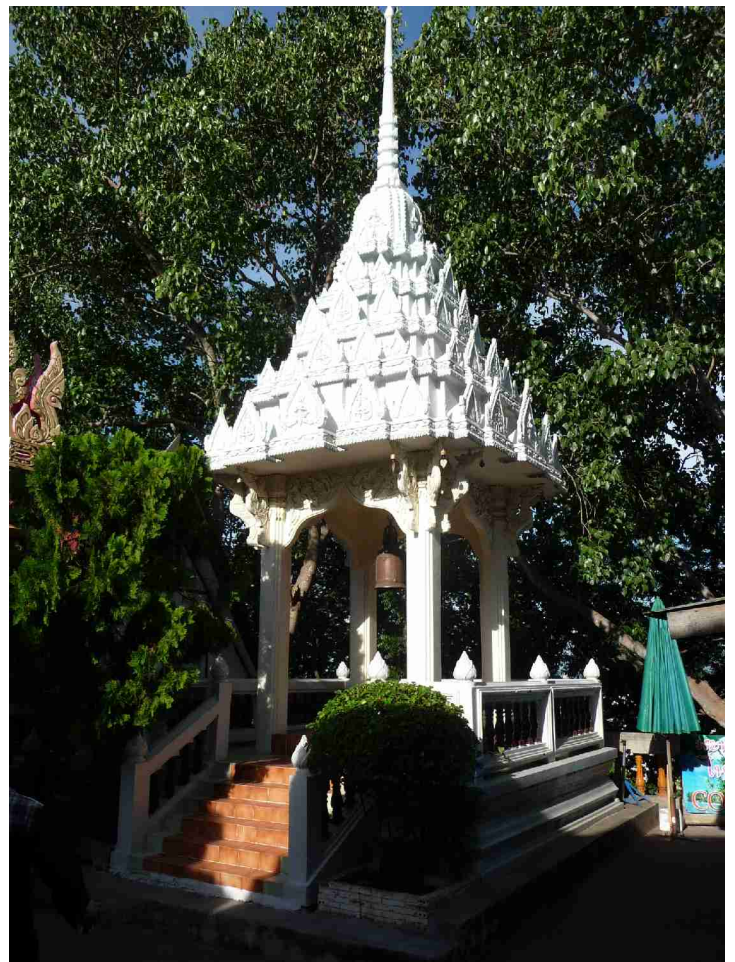

Here are also 7 small Buddha statues, one for each weekday, just like those on Big Buddha Hill.

Way out of the area again.

Her are more Buddha statues being worshiped.

Nice pagoda.

A small temple.

Outside the entrance of the temple area.
